The graphical style of the interface can be changed by both an integrator and an end-user.