It's a cloud server of iRidium mobile company that retransmits messages between panels and the server via a protected protocol. The cloud server does not store data that it transmits or know information about devices that work with it.